theology of history despite the fact that others have specifically cautioned against looking for one in its pages.<sup>4</sup> The questions asked above, however, do not require a full exposition of the theology of history, but only that part dealing with God's temporal activity. Augustine's wisdom sheds valuable light on this topic, providing occasional. <sup>2</sup> By salvation history I mean the history of God's active redemption of humankind. The main events of salvation history are the Fall, Incarnation, Resurrection, Second Coming, and Final Judgement. <sup>3</sup> This is really just a branch of the philosophy of history, just as theology is a branch of philosophy.
