The Quest for Value: A Guide for Senior Managers G. Bennett Stewart

In this bestselling classic of financial management, G. Bennett Stewart, III, raises and answers these provocative questions:

- Do dividends matter?
- Are earnings per share really accurate measures of corporate performance?
- What is the engine that really drives share prices?

More than that, Stewart lays the foundation for EVA^r, the financial management and incentive system now in place at nearly 300 companies around the world, and which is rapidly becoming the global standard for corporate governance.

Managers, confused about what investors really want, often find it difficult to reach informed decisions regarding business strategy, acquisitions and divestitures, financial structure, dividend policy, and executive compensation. But now an EVA^r-based revolution is providing a practical framework that managers can use to build a premium-valued company. At the forefront of this revolution is the consulting firm of Stern Stewart & Co., of which G. Bennett Stewart, III, author of The Quest for Value, is senior partner and cofounder.

The Quest for Value is written for senior management, key operating people, and planning and financial staff. This bible of financial management will assist managers in goal setting, resource allocation, strategy development, valuation of acquisitions, financial policy setting, incentive compensation planning, and building shareholder value.

The Quest for Value cuts sharply through the myths that to this day misinform corporate strategists in their pursuit of shareholder value. Laying waste to inaccurate yet widely used methods of performance, Stewart demonstrates how the Stern Stewart EVA^r approach not only creates greater shareholder value but also provides a powerful framework for the broadest range of corporate decision making.

Szwoch W (2006) Najważniejszy jest wzrost wartości firmy. <https://archiwum.rp.pl/artukul/652042-Najwazniejszy-jest-wzrost-wartosci-firmy.html>. The obsession of most senior managers has been cost reduction, not growth. But hold on, I am not suggesting that growth is the antidote to the pain wrought by downsizing and reengineering. There is always a tendency to mistake the scoreboard for the game. Growth is the score-board, but it is definitely not the game. Surely, we're not going to start with the traditional planning process in our quest to increase the value added of strategy! No, we must start from scratch. Strategy professors and consultants have produced elaborate guides to pig spotting but typically know little about pig farming and much less about the culinary arts required to turn that pig into terrine de rillettes. Industrial economists and traditional consultants are not strategy chefs.

This guide is designed to support line managers and employees in making decisions regarding appropriate and useful leadership and senior management development interventions. The primary aim is to provide sufficient information about a number of widely recognised interventions, such that informed choices may be made when seeking to address identified development needs, or to nurture recognised talents and strengths. A frequently raised question mark regarding the success and value of development interventions is the lack of evaluation of their effectiveness.
