Language disorders: recommendations for teachers. Context/Setting: 1. Conduct language interventions in situations that are representative of "real life" for the student whenever possible so that the actual uses and functions of language are learned. Opportunities for using language are inherent in day-to-day experiences across the curriculum and in informal encounters at school and home, and these opportunities should be capitalized upon. 2. Use highly structured settings for students who cannot attend to and learn language skills in a more typical environment. These settings may feature such...
